A How-To Guidebook

THE CASE FOR WASTE PREVENTION

By and For Legal Professionals

- Improve your bottom line
- Reduce your firm's environmental impact
- Demonstrate your firm's commitment to environmental stewardship

Produced by the Law Firm Waste Reduction Network

Book Production:
Law Firm Waste Reduction Network
Funding Source:
Seattle Solid Waste Utility,
Less Is More Grant Program
Less Is More Grant Manager:
Theresa Hill, 206-684-7666

Research, writing, design, and editing provided by the following Law Firm Waste Reduction Network members:
John Arnold, Davis Wright Tremaine
Brenda Bole, Foster Pepper & Shefelman
Nancy Broman, formerly with King County Solid Waste Division
Aaron Douglas, Lane Powell Spears Lubersky
Matt Fikejs, Business and Industry Recycling Venture
Jan Kraft, J. Lee Kraft Enterprises
Heather McAuliffe, Volunteer
Gabe Tevrizian, Christensen O'Connor Johnson Kindness
Perry Weinberg, Preston Gates & Ellis,
(Primary LFWRN contact, 206-623-7580)
Roger Wynne, Preston Gates & Ellis

Project management, writing, editing and technical assistance provided by:
David Stitzel, President
Full Circle Environmental, Inc.
206-723-0528
Fullcirc@halcyon.com

The text stock is printed on non chlorine-bleached Starbright Opaque recycled paper. It contains 40% pre-consumer content and 10% post-consumer content. The cover stock is printed on Domtar Cornwall recycled paper. It contains 20% post-consumer content.

Andover Printing provided printing services using soy-based inks. Andover Printing is recognized by the King County Solid Waste Division as a Distinguished Green Works member for preventing waste, recycling, and using recycled-content products.

The companion disk for this book has been graciously donated by GreenDisk, a Preston, WA company that erases and reformats high-quality computer disks from the software industry and sells them for retail reuse.

Thanks in particular to David Stitzel, President, Full Circle Environmental, Inc., who expertly and patiently served as project manager for the guidebook. Matt Fikejs of the Business and Industry Recycling Venture played a valuable role as the grant liaison. Debra Haraldson and Denisse Hedman of Preston Gates & Ellis provided valuable assistance with spreadsheet design. Many others have assisted with this project and deserve our gratitude including Kathy Swihart, Lynda Williams, and the Daily Journal of Commerce for providing a mailing list.

Special Thanks To:
Anne Noris,
Clerk of the WA State Court of Appeals
Bruce Rifkin,
Clerk of the US District Court, Seattle
Mark Hatcher,
Clerk of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Seattle
M. Janice Michaels, Director & Roger Winters, Clerk, King Co. Superior Court
C.J. Merritt,
Clerk, WA State Supreme Court, and the Puget Sound Judiciary for their participation in the research for this project.

Design, production, and layout provided by:
Design One, Inc.
Michelle Lubow, President
Katherine Malmsten, Designer
206-298-5200
designone@msn.com
Design One is a recognized Green Works member. Design One also provides imprinted items and logo design using recycled materials and products.

Table of Contents

1 INTRODUCTION - 1

What is the Purpose of This Guide?
Why Should I Read This Guide?
What is Waste Prevention?
How to Use This Guide
About the Authors

2 OVERVIEW OF ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACTS - 3

Resource-Intensive Profession
The Paper Chase
Plastic and Petroleum
Electricity

3 OVERCOMING THE FOUR BIG MYTHS - 5

The Bottom Line
Clients Approve
It's Workable
About Time

4 STARTING YOUR OWN IN-HOUSE WASTE PREVENTION PROGRAM - 9

Create a Green Team
"Audit" Your Current Practices
Identify Waste Prevention Strategies
Obtain Approval from Firm Management
Implement Your Program Firm-Wide

5 WASTE PREVENTION OPPORTUNITIES - 13

Photocopying
Printing
Electronic Communication

(Chapter 5, continued)
Secretarial and Support-Staff Practices
Litigation Practices
Office Supply Reuse
Food Service and Catering
Document Imaging and Archiving on CD-ROM
List of Waste Prevention Strategies

6 OTHER ENVIRONMENTALLY RESPONSIBLE PRACTICES - 21

Recycling
Buying Recycled Products
Tree-Free Paper
Environmentally Responsible Commuting
Energy Conservation
Water Conservation

7 RESOURCES FOR ACTION - 26

Waste Prevention, Recycling, and Recycled Product Purchasing
Energy Conservation
Water Conservation
Alternative Transportation
Hazardous Waste Prevention, Recycling, and Disposal
Other Resources

DISK APPENDIX*

Catalogue of Waste Prevention Strategies
Model In-House Waste Prevention Audit Form
Model Report to Management
Paper Use Spreadsheet
Personal Computer and Printer Energy Use Spreadsheet
Text-Only Copy of the Guidebook
If a disk is not included, a copy of the disk and a hard copy of selected documents are available at the Business and Industry RecyclingVenture at the Greater Seattle Chamber of Commerce, (206) 389-7304.*

What They are Saying About This Guidebook

"This guidebook—written by lawyers for lawyers— is concise, well-written, and full of creative ideas about waste prevention. It is an excellent resource for the legal profession and anyone interested in waste prevention. The City of Seattle strongly encourages managing partners, office managers, and other legal professionals to adopt waste prevention programs and help the City and its neighbors to maintain a strong commitment to a healthy environment."
Margaret Pageler, Seattle City Council

"I am delighted to commend the Guidebook to the lawyers of Washington and to use it at the WSBA office itself. What could be simpler—or more compelling—than this simple statement from the Guidebook: 'Using less means buying less, which is good for your bottom line.' What managing partner, lawyer, or office manager can pass this opportunity up? I commend. . .the Law Firm Waste Reduction Network for producing this informative and compelling 'how to' guideline."
Dennis P. Harwick, Executive Director, Washington State Bar Association

"To become a lawyer is to assume leadership responsibility. This means setting examples of responsibility, not just for our clients and one another, but also for the community around us. This Guide is a step in that direction. It identifies many ways that lawyers can run their businesses with less waste. If even a part of its suggestions were put in practice, lawyers could deliver high quality services more efficiently, reduce their demands on our natural resources, and lead other businesses by example."
James R. Ellis, civic leader, and President, Mountains-to-Sound Greenway Trust

"This Guidebook is an excellent road map for law offices that seek to care for the earth and follow sound business practices. Adoption by the management team will reflect a strong commitment to a sustainable future and provide practical tools for improving office practices. With widespread use of the Guide, the Seattle legal community will be the national leader in waste prevention."
Dick Roy, Executive Director, Northwest Earth Institute, former partner and member of the management committee at Stoel Rives Boley Jones & Grey (Portland, Oregon office)

"We have long sought to recognize and encourage extraordinary contributions to environmental protection. The Law Firm Waste Prevention Guidebook is just such an effort."
Don C. Brunell, President, Association of Washington Business